"An appreciable reduction in wages is noted in every section and in virtually every kind of industry. The fact that savings accounts have increased in the industrial sections however, would seem to indicate that in such districts wage and salary reductions have not been as great as the reductions in the prices of commodities, and that therefore, fortunately, the decrease in wages has not necessitated a lowering of the standard of living.

The credit situation is improved.

HUMOR IN TEST PAPERS A group of clever folk have adopt-ed a game based upon the jewels of linguistic subtlety that swarm in that linguistic subtlety that swarm in that quaint volume now out of print, 'English as She is Taught,' Each player is furnished with a pencil and paper. A word is chosen and the bright minds of the company compete in trying to connect definitions or examples as funny as the actual answers to examination questions embalmed in the book.

Some delectable absurdities have been born of this game, but it can-not be said that they have sur-passed the unconscious achievements of the schoolboy or school girl mind—such an achievement as this which occurred in an examination on gram-

"Every sentence and name of God must begin with a caterpillar." Tea table satirists would be hard put to it to invent anything as funny and as pungent as these lines;
"Some of the best fossils are found in theological cabinets."

"There are a good many donkeys in theological gardens." "Herod was called a tetrarch be-cause he was so fond of tea."

Deep sympathy is evoked by these apothegms, ground out laboriously by perspiring examinees: "All sentences are either simple or confound," and "Grammar gives us the languish."
And that sympathy deepens when one turns to the mathematical section of the collection that fascinated
